Water in Gas Holds Italians

REYNOLDS, Ind., July 11 (INS)—Plans for reclaiming the flight of the Italian armada, bound for Chicago, were tomorrow were being discussed today, as fresh difficulties beset the fliers.

The pilot of the 24 seaplanes, poised near the next hop to Carverville, Labrador, claimed the gasoline with which their planes had been refueled here, was impure.

One report was that water had been mixed with the fuel placed in the tanks of Gen. Italo Balbo, commander of the flight.

The decision to postpone the take-off at least until tomorrow followed an unsuccessful attempt of the armada to take off this morning.

Police officials said they were assigned to the case as a result of his arrest in the investigation of the "Giff" family, to which two women were convicted in Middleburg County.

Mrs. Lida Reel, Needham society matron, was charged with larceny of $100,000 in warrants totaling nearly $20,000 in warrants obtained today in municipal court by Lieutenant Inspector Thomas N. Traynor.

Police officials said Traynor was assigned to the case as a result of his arrest in the investigation of the "Giff" family, to which two women were convicted in Middleburg County.

COUZENS LOOMS AS SUCCESSOR TO WOODIN

Washington, July 21 (AP)—In searching for a successor to Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, President Roosevelt is giving serious consideration to the appointment of Senator James Couzens, independent, and Republican of Michigan, to the post.

This was learned so reports of the impending resignation of Woodin were received on the eve of his return here after three weeks in New York undergoing treatment for a throat infection.

Woodin will relinquish the post in the fall, according to the latest reports. Because of ill health, although the demand for his resignation started with the disclosure of his appointment to the position.

Couzens is now in London as a member of the American delegation to the economic conference. Roosevelt is said to have been impressed with Couzens' economic and financial views, his courage and ability, during the conferences when led to his appointment on the delegation.

Couzens, who has been a severe critic of the Treasury policies since Secretary Mellon's regime, also fills the President's prescribed qualifications for the post—that he must be liberal, but not too liberal. Throughout his successful career, Couzens has pursued an independent course, and has never hesitated to vote with the Democrats when they were in the minority, although they were in the majority when they were in the majority.

Shoe styles this fall are to be set by clothes fashions. And shoes are going the way of all clothes. That is, smart fall shoes are to be of woolen fabric materials to maintain the reasonable idea of woolen fabric suits, dresses and coats.

Motifs of wearing apparel will find ample counterpart in foot-wear, such as for the fall and winter.

To be a mode with your feet, shoes must, like modernity, be something, having and showing fashion, they must, like modernity, be something, having and showing fashion, they must, like modernity, be something, having and showing fashion.

Such innovations were but few of the features exhibited and talked about today at the shoe fair at the Hotel Staller where shoe dealers are exhibiting a "Shoe Deal" in their industry.

And out of the mass of emblems and roundabout discussions came the fall last-minute notes that black is to be the predominant color in footwear, followed up by the rich dark hues, red, orange, red and red for the autumn.

However, the woolen fabric shoe and the water proof shoe in addition to plain sole and leather are the newer notes in materials.

Shoes that breathe, and can stand the test of holding, looking, traveling, and ammonia soaking, made of purified cellulose from wood, from attracted considerable attention as an experiment of fall notes.

Another feature of the shoe fair was a bathing suit and swimwear apparel made of wool, the purified cellulose. Likewise another girl wearing a suit made of this material, trimmed with fur.

'Crazy' Tesla Never Sleeps; Can't Stop Work, He Says

New York, July 21 (AP)—Rockets may live to be 100. But Nikola Tesla's associates lived to the ripe old age of 10.

And Edison may have slept only four hours a day, but the present dean of American inventors, who celebrated his 77th birthday yesterday, says:

"I sleep not at all—only doze off for about an hour a day."

WRAPPED UP IN A TREE

"They Chopped Down the Old Pine." Maybe it was an oak. It could have been a pine—but whatever it was Miss Margaret Hurley has a bathing suit—sandal—cape and bathing bag made from purified cellulose from wood trees. Miss Hurley is shown as she appeared at the annual New England Shoe and Leather Association Shoe Fair at the Staller yesterday.

There were many other mighty good looking articles of clothing made from the same material.

'At Smith Teacher To Be Buried Today

At Smith City, N. J., July 21 (AP)—Funeral services were arranged today for James M. Garber, who died last night at the age of 58.

Garber taught James Gov. Alfred E. Smith when the latter was a pupil at the St. James parochial school, New York.

I have laid down, the inventions I have made, have worked correctly.

Tesla was buried under the old clock edifice at midnight. So he is sure he has the right day for his celebration on birthday both today and tomorrow by working due to the secret of his own personal success, he says.

I have a completely new way of living. It works for me. I do not advocate it for anybody. You must take the facts—those which the body needs—in one meal in the morning. That gives energy. At night, when the body needs cooling, take a meal of the proteins. I never drink coffee or tea. My system works for me.

BLOUSE MAKERS IN NEW CODE

New York, July 21 (AP)—The National Association of Blouse Manufacturers today joined those that have completed codes of fair competition under provisions of the industrial recovery act.

The code provides a maximum working week of 40 hours, excludes workers under 16 years of age, and fixes a minimum salary of $14 a week in cities of 250,000 or over and $12 in cities under 250,000.

Charges of obstructionism in drafting the billion-dollar garment code were made today by Julius Hochman, general manager of the joint board of the Dress and Waist Workers' Union, representing 60,000. Hochman alleged, garment manufacturers had "not once" called labor into conference.

A code for the tobacco industry, affecting 80,000 retail dealers, 800 jobbers and 400 manufacturers, is expected to be ratified this week. William A. Hollingsworth, chairman of the national tobacco council, said today the code will provide "adequate increases in wages, maximum work hours and a bar against child labor."

Every branch of the industry except cigarette manufacturers will vote on the code. The cigarette people have approved drafts of the plan.

Japs Prepare for Chinese Attacks

Shanghai, July 21 (AP)—New Sino-Japanese hostilities were expected imminent today as General Pang Chen-Wu led an army against the Japanese garrison at Dolon Nor, in Chahar province. The Japanese, fearing serious fighting, have rushed reinforcements.

Railroads Employ 20,200 More Workers

Washington, July 21 (AP)—Employment on class I American railroads increased 20,200 men in June as compared with May. Statistics released today at the office of the Interstate Commerce Commission showed 857,230 men working on the railroads in June as compared with 837,030 in May. The figures do not include employees of switching and terminal companies.

The code provides a maximum working week of 40 hours, excludes workers under 16 years of age, and fixes a minimum salary of $14 a week in cities of 250,000 or over and $12 in cities under 250,000.

KIDNAPERS THREATEN TO KILL YOUNG LIEUT. O'CONNELL

RECORD RANSOM OF $250,000 DEMANDED

POWERFUL UNCLES OF KIDNAP VICTIM

after the police broadcast a description of the missing youth.

The police call set out on the teletype system read:

Wanted for kidnaping of John J. O'Connell, Jr., 23 years, 5 ft. 10 in., 160 lbs., light, sandy hair, ruddy complexion, round full face, very heavy build, walks very erect.

Apparently was taken in a waiting automobile, description unknown.

It is requested that you make every effort to locate the whereabouts of this young man. If you have information, you may learn. Kindly notify David Smith, chief of police, Albany, N. Y.

The description was not correct as to age, weight and height of young O'Connell. He is 21 1/2 years, 11 inches tall and weighs 215 pounds.

SKILLFUL BOYER

He is an all-round athlete skillful boxer and golfer, well known to military circles. He was commissioned in the New York National Guard as a lieutenant after he was graduated from the Marine School.

The code used in the newspaper advertisement was a secret code, the position of each letter in the alphabet. The figure 1 represented A, 2 was B, and so on. The list of names of the 13 proposed kidnapers appeared as blocks of numbers.

The code was found by Daniel O'Connell in the letter he received at the postoffice. The letter was kept secret, however, until news papers were successful in decoding the advertisement.

There are two versions of the abduction. One says that O'Connell was forced into an automobile as he stepped from his own car in front of his home at 14 Parkman st., a quiet thoroughfare close to one end.

The other story was that he was leaving a hotel across the street from Pearl st., with a young woman companion when two men slipped pistols in his ribs and forced him to enter a car.

FIRST MISSED BY MOTHER

The Albany Times Union in a copyright story and he was reported as a strong boy, from 15 to 16 years, on Friday, July 7, 1933. His mother, Mrs. John O'Connell, social engagement. She noticed the car in front of the house, the door open and observed that the motor was still running. She saw scattered along the sidewalk and in the gutter.

When she found her son was not at home she thought he must have gone down town in a friends car. Not until several days later was he discovered he was somewhere in the state and that his bed had not been slept in. Telephone calls revealed none of his friends had seen him, but you can only say he felt for him at that time.

The family felt the youth was

EDWARD J. O'CONNELL

Co-leaders of the kidnap party in Albany County, N. Y., Edward J. O'Connell and Daniel P. O'Connell, were the first members of this politically powerful family to receive confirmation of the kidnaping of their nephew.

DANIEL P. O'CONNELL

ew John J. O'Connell, Jr. came in the form of a demand for $250,000 ransom, a record in American abduction, coupled with a warning that the youth would be killed if police were notified.

was able to take care of himself and that the prestige of the O'Connell name alone would protect him in whatever dangerous quarter of the city he might wander.

He recently went to work at the Hedrick Brewery in which his uncle are stockholders, and it was said he would learn the business "from the ground up." He has worked for his uncle in the county and city Democratic organization, and after the death of his uncle, Patrick, last month, he was mentioned to succeed "Ducky" as clerk of the state Senate.

The fact that young O'Connell was joining the brewery business, an employee of the Hedrick Brewery in which his uncle are stockholders, indirectly links the kidnaping with a number of other crimes, including the important figures in the brewing industry.

Ed and Dan O'Connell were just getting their first taste of politics when the Democratic winged son of Albany from the once powerful Hedrick organization, built by the late William Barter, that was more than 10 years ago.

A son and the O'Connell organization, joined with Timothy Hall, an effort to stop the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency. After the convention, however, they made peace with Roosevelt and worked for his election.

They also opposed the nomination of Herbert H. Lehman as the Democratic candidate for governor of New York, but the influence of Roosevelt and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith was too strong.

The O'Connells are reputed to be moderately wealthy, but friends said that they could not raise $250,000. It was said, however, that they would have available a more reasonable sum for the kidnaping ransom.

2 HELD IN GIRL DISAPPEARANCE

Wilmington, O., July 11 (AP)—Wilmington police today arrested George McCoy, 25, and Chester Belden, 28, in connection with the disappearance of 18-year-old Marion Buckley, Cleveland, and daughter of a Cleveland school official.

The two men claim to have given a "lift" last Monday to a girl hitchhiker answering Marion's description.

Police Chief Ben Smith ordered the pair held when "the state's attorney told about seeing a girl hitchhiker" last correspond.

Miss Buckley, daughter of a Cleveland school official, was thought to have been en route to Ashland, Ky., to visit a college friend. Investigation revealed, however, she never reached Ashland.

Marion was a student at Wilmington College here.

Today, in the real estate column of the Cleveland Star, one will find names of applicants for profitable investment.

LEHMAN OFFERS $500 REWARD

Albany, N. Y., July 11 (AP)—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman declared today that the kidnapers of John J. O'Connell, Jr., must be found and they must be punished. He directed Maj. John A. Warner, superintendent of the state police, to put his whole organization on the case.

The Adj. Gen.'s office was authorized by the Governor to offer a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the kidnapers.

Immediately on hearing of the crime, said the Governor, "I made with Mr. Warner, superintendent of state police, and have had several conferences with him since then."

"He also told him that if any special agents are required, which he has not sufficient authority, I shall supply that support."

It is his determination that this type of vicious criminality and racketeering shall be stamped out in New York State and that the perpetrators of this crime will be maintained in this state.

Mr. O'Connell was a member of the National Guard and at the suggestion of a number of National Guard officers, I have authorized the investigation to be given a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of those men."

Two agents of the department of justice, Washington, D. C., arrived in Albany to work on the case. This morning a plan made by Senator Royal C. Copeland, New York Democrat, that department of justice agents be assigned to the investigation.

Atty. Gen. John J. Bennett, Jr., youthful head of New York's law department and experienced foe of racketeering, went to the capital for a conference with Governor Lehman.

'beacon hill'

By Betty Alden

THIS SUMMER AS NEVER BEFORE THE thespians are having their day . . . new and interesting plays are being offered for the approval of the resort colonists from Peterboro to Provincetown. Surry in Maine to Cohasset . . .

At the Playhouse (which will this winter again serve as the Cohasset Town Hall) people gathered from all points on the Cape to see Vicki Baum's play, "The Divine Drudge" . . . a play certain to appeal to the lovers of art on Broadway next winter. In spite of a downpour they came, and stayed until the drop of the last curtain.

Prominent in the front rows was Mrs. Nathaniel Emmons, very youthful in a black satin gown with white wiggle jacket, her blonde curls most becomingly arranged. Her escort was the tall and good-looking Rev. Daniel Magruder.

An interested spectator was the lovely Mrs. Guy Currier, whose artistic performances at Mariaden are well remembered . . . she was chatting with the vivacious Mrs. May Fiske Hoffman, prettily frocked in the youthful flowered chiffon of the mode . . .

An active member of the committee, Ralph Mennard, was stunning in red and white flowered chiffon as she greeted her many friends in the lobby . . . later she was hostess at the Unity Coffee Shop, in which she is so very interested, as the crowd gathered for a snack after the performance . . . Mrs. H. Parker Whittington, one of the initial sponsors of this delightful theatrical venture, enjoyed the play with her friend, Miss Louise Coburn, and her sister, Miss Lucille Perry Hall . . . she wore a light flowered silk, simply cut, so very fashionable this season.

Mrs. Hugh Bancroft in Purple Silk

WE GLIMPSED MR. AND MRS. HUGH BANCROFT in the large throng. Mrs. Bancroft in purple silk . . . the Hugh, Jr., also noted in the audience.

Very distingue was Mrs. Roger C. Hatch in an ice blue lace as she enjoyed the play with Mr. Hatch . . . they are summering at Cohasset and reside at the Ritz-Carlton in the winter . . .

Gaily flitting about through the lobby was Mrs. Dorothy Whipple Fry in the light blue which is so youthful and becoming . . . Beautiful Priscilla Hoyt, one of the debbies of last season, was stunning in white crepe with crimson scarf and sash . . . she was accompanied by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt.

Another post-debutante noted was Ernestine Hills, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hills of Hingham . . . Anne Davidson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Davidson, was acquired by good-looking George Muir . . . she was very attractive in a red velvet evening wrap which set off her dark curls . . .

Mrs. Frederick Good Attends

DAINTY IN WHITE CHIFFON was Mrs. Frederick Good, who is so interested in all things social down on the South Shore . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cullen attended . . . Mrs. Cullen's scarlet chiffon very lovely on her . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Greene, and her attractive husband, Judge Greene . . . Mr. and Mrs. Stearns Pore were in the distinguished audience . . . and may we mark that we saw more good looking men there than we have seen in one place for many a moon.

Others noted in the crowded theater were Mrs. Charles E. Wheelwright, Dr. and Mrs. Ariel George, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Marshall, Mrs. C. Briggs Plant, Eleanor Gibson, chic in black and white print, the Robert Prounys from Hingham, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Drinkwater with their daughters, Mrs. Edward Pinkerton and Mrs. James Rice . . .

Also Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Keen, whose lovely place in the woods of Cohasset is a little gem, Mrs. J. F. Kendall, the Royden Leongs, Betty Smiley, Ada Dowden, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Innes and the Eugene Ladds and Dr. and Mrs. Oliver Howe . . . and anyone else you know . . . the whole South Shore turned out for a great success.

Spend Summer on North Shore

MRS. J. HAROLD COOLIDGE will have her daughter Emily, Mrs. Harry Woodruff, spending the summer on the North Shore with her . . . she arrives this month from Paris where the Woodruffs have a stunning house on the Bois . . . she is bringing her young daughter with her.

Mrs. Bernard C. Carter will come back to Boston this fall to bring out her beautiful daughter, Hope Carter . . . Miss Hope has been attending school at Foxcroft and returned this spring to the family summer home in the South of France . . . The Carters will entertain in New York for their daughter . . . the Boston grandparents are the T. C. Thachers of Beacon st.

The Frederick S. Whitwells have returned to the Ship's Cabin at Marblehead after a three-day reunion at Exeter, N. H., with the Society of the Cincinnati. Mrs. Whitwell is active in the work of the King Hooper Mansion at Marblehead for the summer.

Mrs. Reed Townsend Returns East

FRIENDS OF MRS. REED TOWNSEND are delighted that she has returned East, if only for the summer, which she is spending in Maine. You will remember she came to Boston from New York as the wife of Richard Townsend several years ago . . . they entertained lavishly in their lovely old house in Brimmer st. on the water side; they were quite the smartest of the smart! Much to everyone's regret after a couple of years storm clouds gathered in their marital sky and a divorce followed and Mrs. Reed Townsend had been living in California and "Dieky" at the Tennis and Racquet Club . . . the most popular "odd man." He is a devotee of skating and belongs to the skating club and may be seen at The Country Club walking-in-three-quarter-time with Mrs. Norton, a divine waitress. His niece, Miss Anne Torbert, was one of the most feted debutantes of the past year, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James R. Torbert of Marlborough st.

PICURESQUE MARBLEHEAD IS YOUNG SOCIETY'S PLAYGROUND

O'Connells at North Shore Resort

THE NEW OCEAN HOUSE, Swampscott, so charmingly located on Swampscott Bay, is a favorite haven for New Englanders.

Among those who are spending the summer there is Mr. P. A. O'Connell of Boston, whose son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund O'Connell, are welcome weekend guests.

Mrs. E. O'Connell of Newton, is a popular figure in this gay group. Mrs. Herman Zolnikowicz, of New York, well known and well loved guest for many years, is being entertained by her many friends.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN BRESNAHAN have opened their beautiful summer home at Swampscott. The house is of the Norman-English type, low and rambling, on the grounds of which is a private cove and swimming beach. It is one of the show places of the North Shore.

"DICK" BOARDMAN, genial commodore of the Corinthian Yacht Club, is busy keeping things lively for the members and their guests at the club. He is planning a variety of entertaining when not sailing Frederick Prince's yacht.

MRS. GRITCHEN VANZANT MERRILL, of Chestnut st., Boston (who was divorced from Arthur Merrill, of Brookline, if you remember) has joined the summer colony at the Ocean House. She is a charming woman, most ideally situated on the water, Cape Cod and attracts a discriminating group.

YOUNG PAUL FITZPATRICK, brother of Sally Fitzpatrick of Brookline, popular here, has taken his grandmother's home at Beach Bluffs, on the North Shore, for the summer.

FROM FISHER HILL, Brookline, lending their charming enthusiasm to the Swampscott summer social life, are Mr. and Mrs. John O'Day. Mr. O'Day is attractively dark and petite, with engaging blue eyes and an engaging smile. She is a close friend of Paul Clarke of Old Peak, N. H.

MRS. JAMES P. DONAHUE was in Paris recently, to attend to the wedding of her daughter Barbara Hutton, to Prince Alexis Melvank. The bride is well known here socially.

A TWILIGHT MUSICAL, featuring a request program, by the Boston group, will be held Sunday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Reardon, Jr., at North Scituate. This concert was given for the benefit of Mr. Carmel Reardon, also Spaulding, Grace Donohue, and Mr. William Weston were the artists.

MR. FRANKLIN R. JOHNSON of Marlborough st., has just returned from a trip to Montreal. While away he visited the Seignory Club, outside of Quebec.

MR. PHILIP MERRIVALE, widely known actor and very popular with the theatrical circles, stopped off at the Ritz-Carlton on his way to Peterboro, N. H. He will be remembered for his performance in "Take a Holiday" last winter.

ROSAMOND EMERSON MARY HASKELL LEONORA KIMBALL

PLACID MARLEHEAD HARBOR, sending cooling breezes over the spacious and picturesque estates dotting its shores, is the playground of this happy trio of young society girls. Miss Mary Haskell, Miss Rosamond Emerson and Miss Leonora Kimball are seen for yachting and speed boats and they spend much time afloat. This view of the yachting center along the New England coast is from Crocker Park. (Boston American photos.)

Another Show for Children

The demand for tickets for the two performances of Mr. Panch's Workshop Friday afternoon and evening at Miss Elizabeth Dugan's in Manchester is proving so great that an additional performance is to be given in the morning at 11 o'clock. The morning program will be the same as the afternoon, especially for children.

Miss Charlotte Denney of Manchester will be assisted by Miss L. McKean and Miss Anne Sorrell of Beverly Farms in substituting at each performance of the puppet show. All three of these girls are debutantes of the season.

Among the additional patrons are Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Jr., Mrs. Algernon Cowdell, Mrs. M. Grace Haughton, Mrs. C. H. Hollister, Mrs. Hervey Hood, Mrs. George S. Mandell, Mrs. Bernard C. Weld, Mrs. David Wheatland, Mrs. Clement B. Wood and Mrs. Everett Morgan.

BOOKS---And Other Things

By Charles Hanson Towne

I remember, not on any many a rainy afternoon or twenty, perhaps, reading a sentence in a story by the late Mary Stewart Cuttling, which went somewhat as follows: "He looked at her with that feeling of reverent awe which a man has for a girl who works for her living."

For everyone works who can—nowadays, Duchesses, as well as more about, linen closets and bellhops. There are many professions in which women can excel. Architecture is one. I know a certain lady from New York, long before the first world war, who had been for a number of years in the service of a certain country house architect as a consultant. She knew more about property lighting a room than any man. She knew more about linen closets and nurseries than any skilled laborer. She was far more than an interior decorator. She had common sense about back stairs and kitchens and cupboards. She even got commissions to do

First of Marblehead Plays to Be Presented This Evening

Miss Jane Bogardus heads the numbers at the opening performance this evening in Marblehead of the North Shore Players Guild. The play, "The Middle Watch," is being presented as the first offering of this new theater group. The unusual setting will be the promenade deck of the Hotel Rockwood. Assisting Miss Bogardus will be the Misses Frances Preter, Eleanor Stephenson, Rosamond Emerson, Frances Beaver, Carolyn Samson, Margaret Emerson, Mary Kauts, Sally Ives and Mary Ives.

The proceeds of these plays are to benefit the Children's Island Sanctuary, which is being backed by the ladies' committee of that institution. Among the sponsors of the new project are Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, Mrs. Richard Harte, Mrs. Robert Tappen, Mrs. William D. Scholer, Jr., Mrs. Donald C. Watson, Miss Lorraine Leeson and Miss Edith Pabna. Others include Mrs. Frederick R. Bogardus, Mrs. Frank G. Allen, Mrs. J. Howard Edwards, Mrs. Harold Cutler, Mrs. Duncan, Dana, Mrs. Robert C. Ten over" offices in the Wall Street section of New York. There is a certain engineer's office stop one of our skyscrapers here, but it is a jolly place, a livable penthouse than a series of dull rooms where facts and figures are faced every day. Clients come in, surprised and pleased to see genuine boxes on the terrace and vines growing on trellises outside the windows. It is a joy to enter such a place. Some of the offices have been made soundproof. The psychological effect is apparent in the faces of the clerks and bookkeepers. To arrive at such an office every morning is a delight instead of a duty.

Women have had much to do with this cleaning-up process. They have beautified business in many ways than one. They know how to make everything they touch a little better. The idle woman is the only one who is in ill repute to be pitied. Those who are fortunate enough to have servants realize that housekeeping cannot occupy their daylight hours. They must have something more to fill the long period from breakfast to dinner time. So it is social service or actual labor that most intelligent women are seeking these days; and we shall have a better and a more cause of their boundless ambition.

Beal-Livermore Bridal July 20

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Livermore of Pinckney st. and Topfield have sent out invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Cecily, to Miss Gwendolyn Livermore, a debutante of this season, will be the bride's maid of honor and only attendant. Mr. Edward M. Beal, Jr., of Nahant will serve as best man and Mr. Robert Livermore, Jr., of Nahant will serve as ring bearer. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Livermore, Jr., will assist with the informal wedding.

Latest Notes of Fashionables

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

NEVER WERE SPORT FROCKS MORE in evidence and never were they more attractive in line and contour. Yellow still holds preference as the color with blue, lime and glitshams being widely worn in fashionable colors. Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw, 28 of Newton is spending a few weeks in the Richard T. Wilson cottage in Indian ave., in Newport. Her black and white number print has attracted much attention. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Agassiz Shaw are returning to the North Shore at the Homestead at South Portland. Mrs. Shaw, who was formerly Miss Betty Pope, is playing an excellent game at tennis, and may be seen often at the Essex County Club wearing a coat fitting yellow squire sport frock, just the right length, square neck and bows on her shoulders. Miss Priscilla Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, is summing in Manchester. She has lately returned from a trip to Honolulu, and you should hear her tell about it. One of her most unique costumes is a bright red sport suit of silk, with little firecracker red hat to match. Mrs. Devereau Barker is summing at Marblehead, and planning to winter on Marlborough st. in Boston. She was the former Jean LaFontaine and she is a lovely young thing with dark curly hair, and sparkling blue eyes. She wears a white flannel box coat with a gay plaid skirt of orange and green. Miss Ada Trafford of Milton and Cape Cod writes her family that she is having a wondrous time on her European trip.

Miss Catherine Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oils Weld Richardson of Brookline, is to make her debut this season. At present she is studying at the Little Theatre in Gloucester. Her sister, Miss Polly Richardson, is summing abroad.

Sales Planned to Aid Veterans

The second week of the sales held by the Disabled Ex-Servicemen's Exchange opened yesterday with a successful sale at Mrs. George Whitte's at Woods Hole. Today Mrs. John F. Capron is lending her estate, Broadwin, in Falmouth for another sale. These sales will continue throughout the week with one Wednesday at the Beach House in Gloucester, Mrs. V. E. Crosby's lovely estate at Manchester. Mrs. Crosby will be assisted by Mrs. Boylston Beal, Mrs. Bernard C. Wood, Mrs. Pierpont Stapleton, Mrs. Franklin Drexler, Mrs. Wallace Gouditch and Mrs. Arthur Davis.

Mabel Bradley Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. J. Gardner Bradley of Arlington st. and Charles River announce the engagement of their daughter, Mabel Bradley, to Francis Ferdinand Coloredo-Mannfeld, son of Count and Countess Ferdinand Coloredo-Mannfeld of Austria.

Miss Bradley was graduated from the Beaver Country Day School and attended the Foxcroft School. She was presented in the season of 1929-30 and is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club. She returned in June from a visit to Vienna, where she spent most of the winter.

Mr. Coloredo-Mannfeld prepared in Europe for Harvard, where he was graduated in 1932. He now makes his home in New York. His mother is visiting him in New York at present. His sister, Miss Eleanor Coloredo-Mannfeld, was presented to Boston society in 1931 by Mrs. L. Tucker Burr. No date has as yet been set for Miss Bradley's nuptials.

GOLD MEN SEEK TO EASE BAN

Washington (United Press)—President Roosevelt has today signed an executive order which will ease the ban on gold exports to certain countries. The order, which is effective immediately, permits the export of gold to the United Kingdom, France, Italy, Japan, and the Netherlands. It also permits the export of gold to the Soviet Union, but only for the purpose of paying for goods and services. The order is a response to the request of the gold men, who have been seeking to ease the ban on gold exports since the passage of the Gold Export Act in 1931.

Eddie Collins Gets After Long Wait
His Revenge on Bill And Much Punishment
Killer of Browns Time Turns Tables

—BY AUSTEN LAKE

Even now, after three months of peering wistfully at his Red Sox players from a remote corner of the stands or the rim of the press box above the field, I am certain that Eddie Collins has never grown accustomed to his sedentary duties with the Red Sox. Sometimes I have sat nearby and watched the muscles at the back of his jaw tighten into hard knots and the lobes of his loving cone ears grow pink with emotion when the action on the field took some unexpected turn. And once I overheard him mutter, "For goodness sake," or something like that, when Smokey Joeey forgot to take his first out of his hip pocket in time to catch a line drive.

So that life, until lately, has been a continual round of gnawing his cuffs and sighing through his front teeth. I say "lately" because yesterday he found a moment of spiritual relaxation that lifted some of the weight from his soul and, for the instant, sent him into one of those laugh spasms in which he does a standing jackknife and emits a coughing giggle that gradually rises to a locomotive "Hee-hee-hee."

It seems, during the years when Collins worked as coach at third base for the Athletics, he had the habit of bending over with his hands on his knees and his feet spread wide apart, so that his breeches were stretched very tautly across his stern. And whenever the St. Louis Browns were playing the Athletics it was the mischievous practice of the Browns' manager, Mr. William Killefer, to employ a heavy caliber slingshot with small marbles, known to boyhood by the name of "migs" and purchased a dozen for a penny in any corner notion store, and sharpshoot at Eddie's rear, often hitting the bull's-eye with such velocity that it would cause Eddie to utter a falsetto bellow and leap violently upward, so that he would rotate in the air and, hand applied to the injured spot, come to earth facing the Browns' dugout.

It was a source of continual annoyance to Collins, since he never managed to catch Killefer flagrant delictor, which is a lawyer's term for "red-handed," for Bill would always appear to be engrossed in some innocent task like inspecting the ice in the water cooler or lining up his bat handles.

Time Brings Revenge to Eddie Collins

After these games with the Browns when Collins took his chower baths his posterior was usually pitted with little indentations around which would be inflamed circles, giving his rear, at a short distance, the appearance of a basket of very nice red apples.

There was very little that Collins could do about it at the time, except remember not to bend over when the Athletics were playing the Browns, though in later days he partially solved the problem by wearing double thicknesses of sliding pads and hitching them around to protect the exposed area. Even then, Killefer, who is a resourceful soul, countered by putting more elastic in his slingshot and shooting larger marbles of the size known to boyhood as "glassies" and coming four of five cents. But Bill found the added expense well worthwhile because the "migs" had never been wholly satisfactory, due to their lightness and the uncertainty of winds, and now he was missing fewer blows.

But time has brought a mercy to Collins and now, as president of the Red Sox, he is free to choose his own location when the Browns come to town, which yesterday was in a corner of the press box with a supply of large, two-cent pebbles. They were of the type known to boyhood as "throwing pebbles" and procured as some labor by a friend who selected them for weight and size on the beach at Setauna. And being almost over the top of Killefer's gourd-like, russet head, Eddie was put to no trouble at all to bounce a pebble on Billy's head. What was quite painful to Bill, despite the fact that he was a shatter proof skull, last night had some trouble in fitting on his hat.

Killefer to Be Out of Range Next Season

Then while the Browns' clubhouse man was packing his luggage preparatory to leaving town last evening, Killefer called in at Collins' sanctum, and in profound humility said:

"Do you think, sir, that it is becoming the dignity of an executive of such an elaborate plant, to throw stones at his guests?"

"I would say no," replied Collins, "if I did not remember how you used to make my rear look and feel like a waffle iron after a house party."

So Collins has his moments of relief, when he forgets to nibble his finger ends while his infielders are making croquet wickets out of their legs on ground balls. Only he is saddened by the thought that, when next season rolls around, Killefer will not be managing the Browns any more. For it is generally conceded that Bill's number is up with the St. Louis Club, and I hear that the job has been offered to Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals.

One recalls that when Collins made his debut as general manager of the Red Sox he said, "I will never put on a uniform again," meaning to stymie whatever suspicion the pressmen might have that he intended to manage his own club. But momentarily he lifted himself at Chicago the other day, when he took the coaching line for the American League all-star team against the Nationals. There, when Babe Ruth hit his home run, he went into a wild fan-dance of delight. When he came back to the bench, Lou Gehrig remarked:

"I'll bet that is the only time you ever danced when the Big Monkey hit a one-shot."

"Yeah," said Eddie, "I have had my fingers crossed on Babe so long that they are permanently waved."

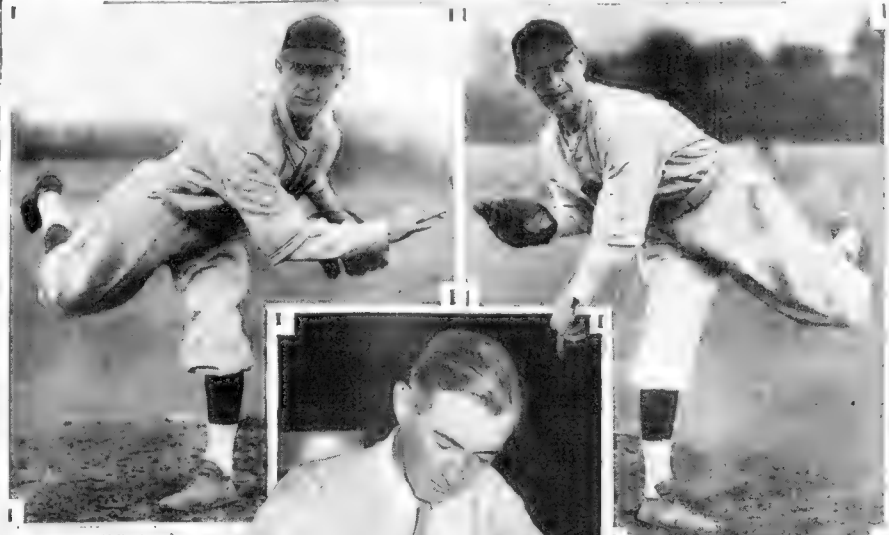

Collins Doing His Own Scouting These Days

One suspects that Collins as a practical baseball man whose playing contacts are still fresh, has itched to take the Red Sox management into his own caloused paw. Secretly he would dearly love to return to the field and match his brains (and they are reckoned large-A brains) against the league. But he will resist the temptation and find the nervous outlet in frequent scouting trips throughout the country.

Thus far he has bought no player that he has not inspected personally before a purchase, and it is probable that he has sent a courier of a million to Tom Hawkey's currency to the cleaners for George Foy, Buck Herzog, Buck Walter, Bill Miller, Al Almada, Bill Werber and Dusty Cooke. These are days when the most of the one-time millionaire owners of baseball have only the crusts and rinds of their former fortunes, and that the sound of Collins rattling a pile of crisp new banknotes is sweet music to their ears.

BRAVES CLASH WITH BUGGS

Pittsburgh, July 11 — Boston

fighting Braves were ready today to parade against the Pirates in the initial ball of a series, here today.

One conflict was on the program. Neither manager had selected a hurler this a. m., but there was a chance that manager Bill McKinnis of the Tribe might start Ed Brandt, his southpaw ace.

Whichever tosser the Braves used, the Braves expected little resistance, and indeed last week at the point where it was a 1-0 score.

Lack of hitting has not bothered the Warriors at all. True, Wally Berger has struck a grand slam at bat recently, but even when Wally fails to hit much the Tribe seems to win. Standout fielding pitching, and last but not most important, manipulating by master pinstriped McKinnis have showed the Tribe to the fore.

The Braves battered the Boston last series, at Cincinnati, and after a one-day rest here, were set to scamp the Braves.

NEW APPLANCES MUST BE REELED IN TO MEET HIGHER COST

By MERRILL S. RAYNER

Washington, July 11.—Aristide of the whirl of excited activity at the National Recovery Administration here, Gen. Hugh R. Johnson, the chief, seeks to maintain the momentum and objectivity of a settlement.

The formula suggesting how business might avoid a premature collapse of the recovery movement was based on a reading of significant statistical charts. It was a disturbingly clear picture that the administration was anxious to see that the recovery movement was not run down by a premature collapse of the recovery movement.

The Banker and the Depositors' Billars

JUDGE JOHN J. BURNS of the Massachusetts Superior Court demonstrated courage and a commendable respect for his oath of office by the decision in which he held the directors of Beacon Participations, Inc., personally liable for the loss of $1,000,000 or more sustained by the shareholders of that corporation.

The standing of the judiciary as a whole has been none too high in public repute.

Our people had come to believe that organized wealth could procure from the courts any sort of a decision that best suited its selfish interests.

Judge Burns, in this distinguished decision at least, has dissipated that suspicion.

It would be better for the judiciary as a whole if some of the other Judges manifested their independence.

And it would be better for the banks as a whole—certainly it would be better for the public—if we had a frank discussion of the evils of speculative banking and a whole-hearted exposure of many of the banking practices which had degenerated into outright racketeering.

The temptation to some bankers to make fortunes for themselves out of the funds committed to their care by trusting depositors was overwhelming during the period of extraordinary prosperity.

WHEN George Holden Tinkham was a member of the State Senate some twenty-five years ago, he secured the passage of a law which made it a criminal offense for any banking official to make profits for himself or to accept fees or subsidies for himself out of his administration of the depositors' money.

It being against the law, some of the avaricious bankers decided to go around the law in their quest for personal wealth.

That is the reason why you may have been refused a legitimate loan at the bank but were instructed to go across the street and see the fellow upstairs "who will be able to arrange it for you."

The fellow upstairs got the loan for you from the same bank. You paid him a fat commission for his influence and he divided the commission with the fellow in the bank who had sent you to him. The fellow upstairs and the fellow in the bank were secret partners, splitting the commissions which should have gone into the treasury of the bank for benefit of all its shareholders and depositors.

Another way of working around the law was the formation of the banking affiliates which are known, quite largely, as investment trusts.

The Federal National Bank had one of these things, a fact now sadly known to the 60,000 depositors of the eight closed banks whose $60,000,000 of deposits have now been isolated from them for more than a year.

Judge Burns finds in his decision that the Beacon Participations, Inc., was another of these things.

The Judge says that the trusting investors who bought the stock of Beacon Participations had every obvious reason to believe it was backed by the soundness of Beacon Trust Company. The directors of the bank and of the investment company were quite identical, at least.

But Beacon Participations, Inc., according to the Judge, was a very convenient "dumping ground" for some of the hazardous investments made by the bank. The stockholders and officers of the bank were bound to pay a double liability in case things went wrong with the bank through unsound investments and bad business management. Seemingly there was an escape for the bankers from any such liability if conditions went wrong with the investment company.

SOME of these gentlemen organized the Beacon Building Trust Company, Inc. They issued a promissory note for $520,000 in the name of that corporation, and got the money from the bank. Subsequently, they voted to have Beacon Participations, Inc., take over the note from the bank.

Thus, according to the Judge, you had the same persons acting as the maker, the buyer and the seller of the same note. The only money possibly jeopardized was the money of the bank depositors.

Banking thus becomes a three-ring circus, with the depositors paying the entire cost of the expensive entertainment.

Bank conditions have vastly improved, no doubt.

They will become all the sounder, when the men who control the banks are brought to the complete personal realization of their stewardship by such decisions as Judge Burns has rendered.

HERE in Massachusetts some investigating and suggesting has been done. Peremptory action, however, has been too slow in coming. The public's interests have been lost sight of in a maze of legal technicalities and quibbling.

Action to correct banking evils must be decisive. Such correction must necessarily be preceded by informative and constructive exposure of past evils.

The Legislature has a powerful banking committee. Governor Ely should and must appoint a special investigating committee to sit during the coming recess, a committee of strong, independent and determined men. If such a committee functions as it should, there never will occur again such spectacles of racketeer banking as we have seen in the past few years.

RESPONSIBILITY rests squarely upon State Banking

Commissioner Guy and his department. This department must find out whether the Blue Sky laws have been violated by bank officials in their stockholder operations. This department must see that pass violations are punished and future foisting of worthless stocks upon depositors prevented.

Interlocking directorates, juggling of assets, wild speculation—these evils marked the frenzied financing that brought losses of millions of dollars to trusting depositors and investors, lured on by improper use of big names and titles in the banking world. These are evils that the Legislature, Governor Ely and the banking department must concern themselves with as a matter of public duty of first importance.

We want our banks to be run always and entirely by men of integrity and financial capacity.

We want our banks to be run always and entirely by men who realize that funds are committed to their care by decent, thrifty, abiding people who have the right to expect they will derive every dollar of profit that is achieved by the prudent handling of their funds.

THE Boston Evening American has repeatedly declared, and now it iterates the declaration, that the closed banks ought to be liquidated speedily, intelligently and effectively. The Federal National liquidation has dragged on interminably, as has been the case with the Continental and others. The depositors have been denied access to their funds by a process of delayed liquidation the heavy expenses of which they have also been compelled to pay. They have been sluggish by delay on the one hand and by expense on the other.

The one best thing that could happen would be for all the parties concerned in the banks to realize THEY ARE THE STEWARDS OF OTHER PEOPLE'S MONEY.

Originating New Fads

NEW YORK, July 11.—Irene Castle is supposed to have sponsored a trial of innovations that clicked best favor—the bobbed hair.

Walk and shrugging a shoulder which while dancing.

Miss Castle, however, admits Beanie McCoy had the idea for the lolly shoulder.

The bob appeared long before she was born and Leon Errol and his wife used to do the Castle Walk years ago. But

Mr. Castle popularized all three. And that is of course, what counts. It is more profitable to have people follow you than to originate a fad sometimes.

Clifton Webb was about 30 years behind with his white man jacket. But made it an fad.

Magnetism again. There is no doubt the excellent entertainer, Benny Field, was crowning a Chicago saloon before Rudy Vallee or Bing Crosby were heard of. But they cashed in.

Nothing new under the sun. Al Johnson exhibited the tricks of Eddie Cantor, George Jessel and Groucho Marx on his knee at the old Winter Garden.

I circled through Ossining to the gates of Sing Sing the other summer. In the high towers with big searchlight guards belted with all-around—the only show of life. All about the well-wooded room of Halland. Even outside the forbidding walls one feels a sharply disciplined instinct, walking softly and murmuring in low voice. Along tracks of the ravine separating the prison proper from the athletic field and factories a train chugged. A fire once told me the noise of these trains, more than anything else, twinged a gulp for his plight.

Oh, yes, along busy Sleepy Hollow, roads attract signs have painted figures of the headless horseman. And there is a tug of the long ago in Ossining, where a monument stands on the exact spot where Major John Andre, British spy, was captured. A turning point in preserving the nation.

Many cellar club joints in the 40's have no outside sign to invite the straying suckers. The gangster owners depend entirely upon night-hawk cabmen to deliver drunks to their doors. For this the cabmen get a percentage of spoils. Sometimes such places are not open more than a week. A loud siren betrays a raid. Most of them nest in West 47th, 48th and 49th streets.

Charles Chaplin finishing 60,000 words for a magazine, which recounts various experiences traveling and meeting celebrities of the world. He is reputed to have a leaning toward literature, liking it more than clowning. Of course, it will be said it was ghost written, but those who know say Chaplin did the entire manuscript—and by hand.

Chaplin, more than any performer I know, has lived inordinately on the lonely side of his art. He may step in deep now and then, but never seems a party. Chaplin tinged his buffoonery with a dash of so long, wanders around in a sort of self-hypnosis, believing himself some sort of martyr. The truth is he is one of the world's luckiest persons.

Dorothy Stone, training with nimble Fred Astaire for final weeks of a musical show run, suddenly excited an unexpected furor. So of a musical show run, suddenly excited at her stage door than any other. None is so close to heels of quick action as a nature secker.

Hamish MacLaurin tells of the Hollywood director inspecting a bedroom set prior to shooting the scene "Hedy" he backed at the prop chaperone, "why all these cheap china cuspoids? Take them away and put in big brass ones. This is supposed to be a rich man's bedroom." Swank is the Boston Evening American.

O. O. McIntyre's article is a feature every week of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

A Mid-Season Santa Claus

"Christmas comes but once a year,"
So sang the old refrain,
But here's another Christmas time,
For those who grow the grain.

By Edgar A. Guest

The Killdeer

The killdeer, nesting on the ground,
A method to baffle foes has found,
And in an ingenious way
Off leads the curious boy astray;
Or with its very plaintive cry
Attracts the heedless passerby
And, feigning broken wing, she'll lure
His feet to leave her nest secure.
I've watched her often. As I neared
Her nesting spot she appeared
Fluttering upon the ground; her wing
Apparently useless thing.

Old Sauty hasn't come in furs,
With reindeer and a sleigh,
But there's the tune of merry bells
On mid-Summer Christmas Day.

Just Folks

Enticing me by sham and cry
To catch a bird who cannot fly,
And tricking me, unharmed to pass
Near their deep hidden in the grass.
I'll venture trickier such as that
Has oft outwitted many a cat.
But what I wonder is: Why taunt
The wily killdeer such a thought?
How is it that small creature knows
So neat a way to cheat her foes?
Who told her this: Where dangers lurk
The broken-wing defense will work?

Human Side of the News

Is Mars Inhabited? Britons Will Try to Discover

From Jungfrau's Peak

By Edwin C. Hill

From the daily run of the news there leaps now and again an idea which thrills the imagination. A group of enthusiastic Britons propose to set up on the towering peak of the Jungfrau, in the Swiss Alps, a tremendously powerful battery of the electric searchlight. They intend to use this during the month of August in flash messages in Morse code to the astronomers of the planet Mars who are supposed to be peering through their telescopes toward the earth.

In the latter part of August Mars will swing in its orbit within a little more than 35,000,000 miles of the earth. The British scientists see an answer to the age-old question: Is Mars inhabited? This is a subject of controversy will never grow dull. For a hundred years astronomers have argued that thrilling question. The late Prof. Percival Lowell, founder of the Flagstaff Observatory in Arizona, did much to popularize the view that Mars is a living world. Although many of his deductions were challenged in his lifetime, there can be no doubt that his ideas have gained strength in recent years.

Thanks to the work of such physicists as Doctor Coblentz, a good case for the existence of life on the red planet has been made. But oxygen and water vapor have been discovered in the Martian atmosphere. Both of these are essential to the maintenance of life. The surface temperatures of Mars compare very favorably with the surface temperatures of the earth. During the Martian winter the poles of Mars are blanketed and surrounded with a vast white deposit. This melts away with the approach of summer. As the melting proceeds, vast areas of Mars change in color from white to red.

Nowadays many astronomers agree with Prof. Lowell and Dr. Coblentz with the disappearance of the vast white areas around the Martian poles is really the melting of enormous fields of snow and ice, thus revealing our own North Pole and South Pole. And so the Martian seasons. The atmosphere is thin, but there may be beings who can breathe that atmosphere and flourish. The newest convert to the theory of life on Mars is Hiram Percy Maxim. Mr. Maxim joins the ranks of those who are convinced that the famous "canals" of Mars are actually the gigantic achievements of a race far more advanced than the human race. He cites the investigation by Prof. Lowell of the great-est markings on the surface of Mars. Among the many who have seen the circular lines are Schiaparelli, Perrotin, Thollon, Flammarion, Faulstich, Williams, Pickering, Douglas, Lampland and others. Mr. Maxim believes that these lines, like the canals of Mars are artificial and that there is the gigantic work of intelligent beings of tremendous intellectual capacity.

As for the canals, Mr. Maxim believes that they are vast artificial channels which bring water down from the melting snowcaps of the planet to irrigate vegetation and maintain life.

Fascinating as the possibilities suggested for the future of radio communication with the planet which is our near neighbor in the great family of the Solar System, great family of the Solar System, Mr. Maxim says that if the mental abilities of the Martians are as much in advance of ours as their canals would indicate, they may have brought radio to a very high level of development. And radio, he thinks, is the only possible means of exchanging the news and the time of day between the earth and Mars.

At yet, however, we human beings are not very far advanced in the use of radio, and improvement will have to be made in operating on lower wavelengths (the work is now being done by the great Italian, Marconi, who has been endeavoring to detect and detect electro-magnetic oscillations in the atmosphere of Hiram Percy Maxim 25 years more or less ago.)
